The Pastor's Pen

Here's a stupid little story I am going to share... I was relaxing in the sweat-box at LA Fitness after a wonderful workout. I don't go to the sweat box often, but when I do I like to relax in silence. I mean, SILENCE. There are no speakers inside, playing dance music I don't care to hear. There is no loud conversation or weights clanking together. It is the only spot in the whole building where I can collect my thoughts. It is the only spot, I believe, that should remain silent, because there is so much other noise surrounding us.

Well, this guy entered the sweat box with a MP3 playing through his headphones. The guy must have been deaf, because the music was blasting and I could clearly hear every note. This guy was big, as in chiseled like a Michelangelo statue. I definitely wasn't going to say anything to him about the disturbance. So I sat there annoyed, inventing all sorts of things I would say if I was Superman, steaming both physically and emotionally.

Yes, this is a silly story. What was the big deal? The guy entered the room to enjoy the sweat box just like me, and he happened to bring personal music with him. I wasn't going to be there for long, so I could have put up with the music, right? The silly part of the story is my stewing and inventing scenarios in my head of how I could tell him to shut off that rotten music.

We do the same thing, when we see a girl enter the room wearing inappropriate clothing. Or when we walk by a man smoking next to the entrance of a store, while the sign says not to do so. Or when we see a table of DOT workers, swearing and laughing audibly. Or when somebody sitting next to us at the ballgame keeps saying, "Jesus Christ," and she isn't worshipping. We pass judgment when we experience something offensive. We gossip to our friends about how terrible those people are. They are in the wrong and we are in the right, and God looks down on both of us and might condemn us for our reaction to the other person's action. We are all guilty of reacting negatively toward things that displease us. There has to be a solution.

Jesus says, "Love your enemies." That muscular dude in the sweat box had become an enemy by invading my personal space. But a little voice (the Holy Spirit, perhaps?) told me to pray for him. Not the kind of prayer that goes, "Dear Lord, strike his MP3 with lightning, so it doesn't work anymore! By the way, strike him with lightning, too!" No, I thought about the guy himself. What are his dreams and aspirations? Are they in line with God's plan for him? I prayed about those things. If he is a child of God, as I am, I hope he glorifies and thanks God for his life. If so, great. If not, I hope he will someday.

It was easy for me to pray those things, because I chose to stay relaxed in the sweat box until my time was finished. It is not so easy when we just walk by people, or they happen to walk by us. The temptation to judge is much too great, while the opportunity to pray is such a tiny window. If we are dwelling mentally on how terrible that person is, we should turn our reaction into prayer. Again, not the kind of prayer in which we wish evil things upon them; but rather, the kind of prayer that considers the whole person, who has hopes and dreams like us, fears and concerns like us, good days and bad days like us.

If we pray for them, we have little to no criticism to offer. We harbor no ill will in our hearts. Instead of saying, "Strike them down, Lord," we can say, "Love them, Lord, like you love me. Direct and guide their lives, so they may have heaven as a reward, which is also my greatest desire."

Peace in Christ, Rev. Dr. John
